Non-Muslims and Islam. The Qur'an distinguishes between the monotheistic People of the Book (ahl al-kitab), ie. Jews, Christians, Sabians and others on the one hand and polytheists or idolaters on the other hand. [citation needed] There are certain kinds of restrictions that apply to polytheists but not to "People of the Book". One example is that Muslim males are allowed to marry a Christian ...

Do patterns of female labor force participation help explain the religious gender gap? One theory discussed in Chapter 7 on why women generally tend to be more religious than men is that, in many societies, women are less likely than men to work in the labor force, a social role that some studies find is associated with lower levels of religious commitment.
